This is an example PDF

Wex is a Command Line Interface (CLI) tool written in Python and Bash. It is part of a supportive and collaborative community, which can be found at https://wexample.com. Wex is a strict framework designed for development and application management. It provides capabilities to initialize and run Docker applications, and it also offers AI integration to communicate about your app. Wex has the ability to seamlessly execute both Python and Bash commands without requiring subprocesses.